How Seriously Should the Rankings Be Used by Students When Choosing Any University?

Answer to this question depends... It is best to select a university that has a strong reputation in that particular discipline. There may only be a few elements of the "rank" that are important. For example, the best ranked universities usually have very competitive entry requirements, interviews etc. There are multiple screening tests as well for better analysis and yes it's an important advantage for better career.

Why To Choose Ranking Universities?

There have been several studies done over a long period of time that indicate the importance of individuals ability and drive for "success" as opposed to a degree from a "brand" name university.

'Budget or Ranking ?

Many counselors says that parents are the ones who decide which university my son or daughter should attend and should be one of the top ranking, degree that recognized globally & university they can afford easily. What advice should "We" as a "Counselor" give to the students wishing to take admission in the best universities fitting in their budget, regardless of global rankings.

What Results You Can Expect After Graduation ?

Quality has no finish line. Yes if the right parameters of quality for the courses that you have selected then the results are always good. Ranking, quality of education, reputation, infrastructures and off- course student will be surrounded by good professors, doctors and other good students. These are benefits and you can definitely crack competitive exams like NMC/FMGE, USMLE, PLAB, UKCAT etc.

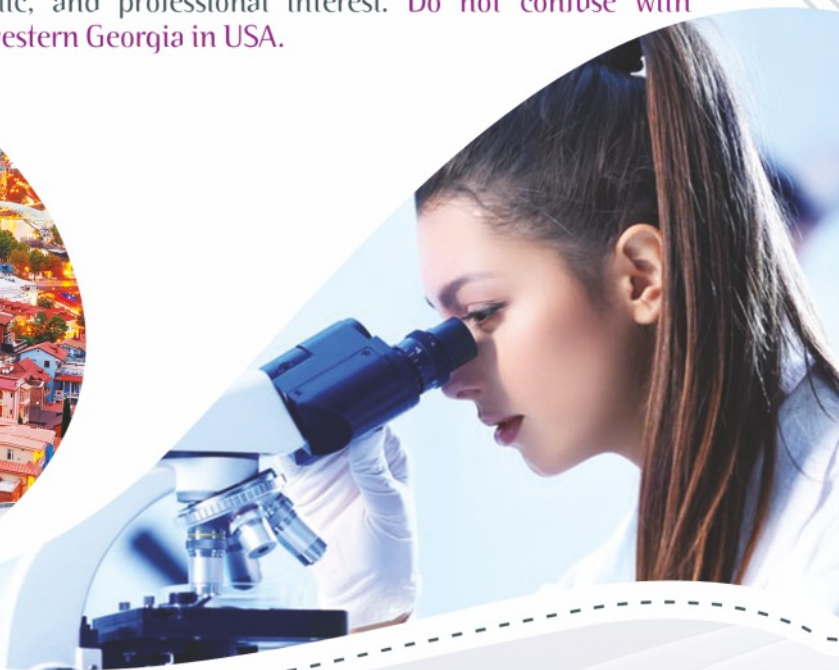

Are you looking for 'Budget & Ranking Universities ?

Yes.. Now its possible through Leobiss International.. You can find here the Ranking as well as Universities in your Budget.
